Dear Mr. Reynolds:

This letter is to call attention to the items listed on my 2007 Financial Disclosure Form as entries for interests in Humana Corporation and HCA. Because these were not previously listed on my prior disclosure forms nor acquired during the 2007 reporting year, I write to explain.

In or about 1985, I was given [REDACTED] of Humana on the occasion of the birth of [REDACTED]. For whatever reason, probably due to the very small amount of stock, I forgot about it and eventually lost the certificates. More recently, I realized the certificates were missing and have now taken steps to cause Humana to reissue the certificates. In the interim, HCA split off from Humana some time ago and was supposedly obligated to issue shares of HCA to existing Humana shareholders on a share for share basis. I was not aware of this at the time (or failed to take sufficient note of it). Recently, the Controller of the State of California notified me that HCA had deposited some shares (without specifying the number of shares but which I presume to be [REDACTED] to correspond to the number of Humana shares I have), in my name, with that office as unclaimed property. In the meantime, HCA went private. I have since taken steps to cause the Controller to return the shares of HCA to me so that I can then (if still timely) seek redemption of those shares from HCA.

As a result of following up and researching what had happened during the interim two decades or more, I also realized that I should have listed Humana (and probably HCA to the extent that I am not now foreclosed from getting redemption of the shares once they are returned to me by the State Controller) on my annual Financial Disclosure Forms. Please deem this letter as an amendment to all my prior disclosure forms. Humana advised me that it has not declared any dividends, and I have no recollection of any dividends being paid by either Humana or HCA. Moreover the value code has not changed, and I have caused no reportable transactions over the years. Accordingly, these entries on my current form would be the same for any prior forms to the best of my knowledge.

I regret this oversight, and hope it does not unduly inconvenience you and/or the staff. Going forward, I will ensure that I include these items to the extent that they continue to be reportable on future forms. Thank you very much for your attention to this matter.
